

Thursday 11th February Madison-Poem
Northern Lights

The strays of light glistening in the corner of my eye, Waves of Aurora lighting up the midnight sky,
The reflection of the green mist in the bright distance,
The way for me to follow my existence,
The Northern Lights shine so bright, They guide me through the darkest night,
The way they dance amongst the azure.
Something I have never witnessed before.